

The media learned about the placement of Russia in Syria of air defense systems s-300

US intelligence agencies believe that Russia will deploy in Syria, the latest air defense system s-300VM. On it informs TV channel Fox News, citing sources. The system can intercept aircraft and cruise missiles. It has the potential to confront any cruise missile the USA celebrate channel sources. Military officials argue that Russia decided to locate the system outside the country. They are very interested in targeting its application as terrorists have no air force. Us intelligence claims that the complexes arrived in Syria last weekend and are still in the docks at the Russian base in Tartus. Military channel sources believe that using the s-300VM Russia plans to defend against any potential attack from the United States or its allies. Fox News also reported that after the incident with the downed Turkish Russian su-24 Russia launched a separate air defense system s-400 in Syria. After that war the US pilots were very cautious during manned space flight within the range of the system.
